

Images of Germany
Nationalism and the Visual Arts 1813-1913
Massimo Ferrari Zumbini

9	Introduction. Images of a nation; themes of tradition and modernity
9	Tradition and modernity: a crucial relationship
20	The dual theme in political iconography
27	The architecture of power: dynastic interests, Lokalpatriotismus and religious conflicts
36	The Protestant-Catholic divide
47	Chapter 1. Leipzig 1813: the Battle of the Nations as realm of memory for German nationalism
61	Chapter 2. A nation imagined
61	In search of a temple to the nation: the Walhalla and Cologne Cathedral
67	Ludwig, Bavaria and the Walhalla
80	The Parthenon on the Danube
87	The ritual: from entrance hall to the temple of glory
94	Danube perspectives: the Walhalla – history and landscape
102	Cologne: rebuilding a cathedral to build the nation
113	The cathedral and politics: the Vatican, Prussia and the defence of the Rhine
127	Chapter 3. Painting a nation at war
127	Sedan: the ‘momentous battle’ and the débâcle
138	Between premodern and total war
152	War photography
161	Battle paintings: Napoleon and after
176	France: the glory of defeat and the rebirth of a nation
199	Germany: a brotherhood in arms and the unification of the nation
213	Chapter 4. The painter of the empire: a painting with dangerous implications
213	Background to a painting
217	Werner and the Reich
223	Wilhelm I, the first emperor: The Proclamation of the German Empire
231	Frederick III, the emperor of the 99 days: painting the Germany that might have been
242	Wilhelm II, the last emperor: power, and Jewish emancipation
249	Painting and antisemitism: the painting in the Mosse Palace
261	Chapter 5. Statuemanía: from rulers to the bourgeoisie
261	The architecture of power: imperial statuary
272	Equestrian statues and Prussia: a controversial preeminence
294	Statuemanía and the bourgeoisie: Germany as Kulturnation
320	From painting to the statues of the nation: Luther, Schiller and Goethe

361	Chapter 6. Monuments of the nation
361	National monuments? The question of definition
372	From Victory Column to the return of Barbarossa
393	Arminius: the creation of a national Protestant hero
403	Chapter 7. Bismarck, the contested leader
403	Controversy and classification
408	The portraits: Werner and Lenbach
413	Statues and the Lokalpatriotismus : Cologne, Nuremberg, Hamburg and Bremen
429	The student movement, Wilhelm Kreis and the Bismarck towers
447	The shadow of Bismarck, the emperor and the deathbed photographs
457	Chapter 8. Leipzig 1913: the Monument to the Battle of Nations; the end of Statuemanía in Heinrich Mann's Man of Straw
477	Webliography and bibliography
529	Index of names